achievements of both armies demand a record in American history. The war of '61-5 was not a war against the principle of republican institutions. It illustrated the martial spirit and genius of the American soldier and sailor. It was a war in which sentiments and ideas dominated interests. We now see that the obstinacy of the war on both sides compelled the settlement of all elements of division between the north and the south. An earlier peace might have been a mere truce. We fought until the furnace of war melted our differences and moulded us into a homogeneous nation.

Signing the Scale.

PITTSBURG, July 2.—Two more signatures to the Amalgamated scale were reported this morning. They were the Laughlin Iron company of Leechburg, Pa., and the Lindsay Iron company of Findlay, Ohio. This news was the occasion of considerable rejoicing about workmen's headquarters. Manufacturers claim the action of these firms was determined before the lock-out began. The shut-down does not affect every workman in and around the mills, as has been reported. Many of these departments that are not governed by the Amalgamated association scale will continue [illegible] for example, employ 4000 men at the American Iron works, but only 2000 of them are affected. The others are employed in machine shops and other departments of the mill. They will continue work as long as they have work, and if trade will warrant, an effort will be made to purchase material in the east.

PITTSBURG, July 2.—This evening Superintendent Walker, representing Carnegie, Phipps & Co., signed the scale for all their mills except the Homestead steel works. Carnegie's mills are now closed, but operations will be resumed on Thursday. The Republic Iron Co. of this city also placed their signature to the scale to-night and will start up the latter part of the week.

Tariff's Nomination.

WASHINGTON, July 2.—The senate committee on judiciary has decided to report back the nomination of Melville W. Fuller to be chief justice without any recommendation.

Present Congress.

SENATE.

WASHINGTON, July 2.—The conference report on the legislative appropriation bill was presented and concurred in.

The senate then took up the river and harbor bill, amendments to which had been reserved all Saturday for separate votes. Demand for a separate vote on the Hennepin canal amendment was withdrawn by Vest, on the suggestion that their position might be left to the conference committee, but subsequently a motion to reconsider was made by Sherman as to the amendment abolishing the Missouri river commission.

Vest offered to withdraw it at the request of Paddock, but Plumb insisted upon a vote being taken, and made an argument against further continuance of the commission.

In the course of the discussion Hoar made a vehement denunciation of the criticism and abuse so generally indulged in by some senators and by newspapers in relation to the river and harbor bill. He had got sick, he said, of hearing the senators trying to blacken the characters of their associates in public life by charging that river and harbor bills are made up of miserable bargains, log-rollings and chicaneries.

Vest took the responsibility of saying that legislation on river and harbor bills was not free from criticism.

Hoar—"But are they honest items or not?"

Vest—"That is another question. I undertake to say for the committee on commerce that we have honestly tried to do our duty, but we have put appropriations in this bill against our own judgment, certainly against my judgment, because we have been overwhelmed by personal solicitation and as the effect of personal solicitation."

At the close of a long discussion of the amendment abolishing the Missouri river commission it was disagreed to.

Palmer offered an amendment appropriating $350,000 for the purchase of the Portage Lake and Lake Superior ship canals. Agreed to.

Sherman said he would not insist on his motion to reconsider the vote agreeing to the Hennepin amendment, although he was opposed to it.

The bill was then passed as originally reported from the senate committee on commerce. It appropriates $21,562,783. As it finally passed the senate it appropriated $22,174,783, having been increased by the senate $612,000.

On motion of Hoar the fishery treaty and Morgan's resolution thereupon were postponed till Tuesday of next week.

Turpie then proceeded to address the senate on the president's tariff message. In the course of his speech he said production was a good servant but a bad master. It could not be shown that any person or corporation who was engaged in good faith in the business of manufacturing would be injured by the reasonable reduction of duties proposed in the Mills bill, or that any employe would be harmed. Emancipation of labor, from the oppression of monopoly, commerce and manufacturers from inequitable and impoverishing restrictions, restoration to the people of their ancient commercial rights and franchises, it was this that was proposed by the message of the president. The consummation of this would not be retarded or prevented by the action of the Chicago convention. The candidate of the Chicago convention was the well-beloved and chosen representative of the rank and lawless growth of incorporated power. He would faithfully befriend, protect and encourage American industries by the highest and most prohibitory and unnecessary restrictions, and by permitted immigration of Chinamen. Although he was a man of no small capacity, of great mental force, he had that which was not often found with such qualities—a harsh intolerance which treated dissent as idiocy. Rightly touched and tinged with the prejudices of exclusive class aristocracy, he belonged to that group of reactionary statesmen whom the people so often rejected and would reject again.

At the close of Turpie's speech the senate proceeded to executive business, and then adjourned till Thursday.

HOUSE.

In the house to-day among the bills introduced and referred was one by Anderson of Iowa providing for the control and regulation of railroads acquired by the United States under judicial forfeiture. This is the bill introduced by Anderson in April last. It is a very long measure and Anderson demanded its reading in full in order to examine and prevent as long as possible the offering of a motion for the passage of the Union Pacific funding bill under the rule of the rules.

For an hour and a half the reading clerk was uninterrupted in his monotonous droning of the bill, but then the proceedings were diversified by Blond of Missouri with a motion to adjourn which was promptly declared out of order because the reading, and again the weary clerk resumed his task.

Finally the reading was concluded and Anderson was on his feet and immediately introduced a bill to establish a municipal code for the District of Columbia, a volume of 321 pages.

Half an hour was then consumed in an effort to break the deadlock.

At last Hitchcock of Missouri saw it was perfectly evident that the reading would consume all the time if the rules of the house would have to adjourn under the rule. In the interest of the convenience of members and clerks, he moved adjournment, and the motion prevailed.

Flagstaff Burned.

ATLANTIC & PACIFIC, July 2.—Flagstaff, the principal town on the Atlantic & Pacific railroad between this place and Los Angeles, was almost totally destroyed by fire this morning. A special to the Albuquerque Democrat gives the following particulars: The fire broke out at half past three this morning in Tabbs's saloon on Railroad avenue [illegible] rapidly east and west, taking all the principal streets of the town except the brick building owned by J. R. Kilpatrick and occupied by Cameron & Reid. The places destroyed were those occupied by C. A. Keller, fruits and confectionery; Exchange bank of Arizona; Central bank; P. D. Ryan, saloon; M. A. Hike's restaurant; J. M. O'Neil, fruits; Dr. Corbich, office; J. Altman, general merchandise; W. G. Henry, desse Black, C. F. Taylor, James A. Vaile, saloons; Hayes Bros., barber shop; Robert Richards, fruits; the fine new building of J. F. Donahue, just completed, and not occupied. The loss is not less than $100,000, and the only insurance is $7,000, held by B. Salzman. All the policies on the street except Salzman's had been cancelled by the companies three days ago. The office of the Signal, in the Donahue block, is totally destroyed. The Champion office was not burned but is totally ruined.

General Sheridan's Voyage.

FORTRESS MONROE, VA., July 1.—The United States steamer Swatara, with General Sheridan on board, arrived at 8 o'clock this morning. A boat was sent ashore with bulletins announcing that the general had passed a comfortable day yesterday. He was somewhat restless during the night, probably on account of new surroundings, but his general condition is satisfactory. He is very comfortable on the vessel. Owing to a heavy swell outside from the effects of a recent storm, Captain Meiswan decided to remain here until to-morrow morning.

The benefit of the sea voyage on General Sheridan's condition is already apparent, and his physicians are greatly pleased with the result of the trip thus far. His pulse is stronger and his mind is clearer than it has been since his illness. General and Mrs. Tidball sent him a number of delicacies and a handsome bouquet of flowers this afternoon. The following bulletin was just received:

10 p. m.—General Sheridan had a very comfortable day. He has rested well and his symptoms are favorable. If the weather is pleasant the Swatara will sail at daylight to-morrow. Should a storm arise she will stop at the Delaware breakwater until it subsides.

FORTRESS MONROE, VA., July 2.—The Swatara with General Sheridan and party sailed at daylight. There was a fresh easterly breeze. Thermometer seventy.

Stock Markets.

NEW YORK, July 2.—Money on call easy, closed 1½ to 2; prime paper 3 to 6. The stock market opened dull with fluctuations confined to the narrowest limits and of little or no significance. The dealings were almost entirely professional. There was a hopeful feeling in Union Pacific this morning, upon the announcement that Speaker Carlisle would not oppose calling up of the funding bill, and some improvement was made in the price of the stocks, but the filibustering operations of opponents of the bill disappointed holders, and a material decline followed. Movements in the rest of the list were confined to small fractions, except in Northern Pacific and Oregon stocks, which were stronger on the recent good showing of earnings. The market closed dull but steady at about the opening figures. Governments were dull and steady.

Attacking the Maxwell Grant.

KANSAS CITY, MO., July 2.—The validity of the Maxwell land grant is soon to be put to a severe test. The Interstate company, which under the leadership of Charles Goodnight, the Texas cattle king, purchased Beal's grant a few years ago, has just secured the original papers Beal's grant and will soon institute a suit in United States courts to dispossess the owners of the Maxwell grant, which is included in the territory comprising Beal's grant. The land covers millions of acres in New Mexico, Colorado and Kansas, and is of enormous value, as a number of towns are located thereon, Trinidad being one of the number. The Interstate company began suit in Colorado some time ago, but found their case was worthless without the original papers, and an agent was sent to Europe to obtain them. After nine years search he succeeded in finding them, and they are now ready to proceed.

An Extraordinary Fog.

GIBRALTAR, July 2.—A fog of unprecedented denseness prevails here. Three British steamers, Glenderon, Lionel and Earl of Dumfries, have gone ashore since it set in, and another steamer, the Resolution, has arrived here with bows much damaged.

Extensive Forest Fires.

CHARLEVOIX, Mich., July 2.—Forest fires are raging in this vicinity. Two fire engines from this place have been working since yesterday afternoon to save the lumber yards and mills.

Hit by Base Ball.

PITTSBURG, July 2.—During a practice game at Recreation park this morning Donlap of the Pittsburg base ball team, was struck in the face with a hard hit ball and his right jaw broken. He will be unable to play for several weeks.

CITY COUNCIL.

Regular Meeting of the City Council Last Evening.

A Number of Petitions Presented and Referred.

Two Ordinances Introduced and Passed Unanimously.

Resignation of the Chief of the Fire Department Presented.

A regular meeting of the city council was held last evening, with Mayor Stocker and all the aldermen present. The minutes of the previous meeting were read and approved.

The following petition was read:

We, the undersigned property owners respectively in blocks [illegible] in the Highland Park addition, [illegible] fully represent to your honorable body that, the city ditch as at present constructed through said blocks causes the water to set back and overflow portions of our land above the ditch, and also the street in front of same. We respectfully request the privilege of straightening the course of the ditch and bringing it by such a bend as to cause a free flow of the water through the same in accordance with the plan herewith submitted. We offer to make the change and to keep the ditch in a [illegible] manner at our own expense, and under the direction of the city engineer.

[Signed] W. B. Fairbank,
[illegible] Bowers,
W. E. Thomas,
G. W. Thomas,
F. G. Rowe,
Jessie M. Rowe,
Thomas Thompson.

On motion of Alderman Skinner the petition was referred to the committee on streets and ditches, with power to act.

The street railway company requested the privilege of constructing a barrier on the north side of its track west of the Monument creek bridge to a point near the southeast corner of Cain's addition.

On motion of Alderman Stubbs the request of the street railway company was granted.

Alderman Skinner, from the sewer committee, stated that two of the parties who had agreed to give the right of way for the sewerage pipes through their property had now refused their consent and demanded compensation.

On motion of Aldermen Stubbs the committee were authorized to proceed in the matter as they should deem best for the interests of the city.

Alderman Lawton, from the committee on streets and ditches, reported in favor of changing the grade in front of Mr. F. G. Rowe's premises and the first and second lots north of the same, on the east side of Tejon street between Iowa street and Pike's Peak avenue. The grade to be changed by the city engineer. On motion of Alderman Lawton the report of the committee was adopted.

The committee on public grounds and buildings requested the privilege of removing the street lamp in front of Dr. Selby's residence on Cascade avenue which was granted.

Alderman Stevens from the committee on irrigation and cemetery stated that some dispute had arisen between the irrigation commissioner and the owners of vegetable tracts regarding the amount of water which they could use, and the times when they could have it.

On motion of Alderman Skinner the matter was referred to the committee on irrigation and cemetery and the irrigation commissioner.

Alderman Stubbs introduced an amendment to the fire department ordinance which had been agreed upon by the companies composing the department.

On motion of Alderman Stubbs the rules were suspended and the ordinance was passed by the following vote: Ayes, Stubbs, Bartlett, Skinner, Himebaugh, Callaway, Lennox, Lawton, Stevens.

Alderman Stubbs introduced an amendment to Section 1 of the ordinance concerning nuisances.

The amendment is as follows:

Be it ordained by the city council of the city of Colorado Springs that Section 1 of an ordinance entitled an ordinance concerning nuisances, passed April 5th, 1886, be amended so as to read as follows:

That any stable, stall, shed, apartment, pen or place, or any yard or appurtenance thereto, where any horse, cow, or swine, or any other animal shall be kept in this city, so as to be offensive, is hereby declared to be a nuisance, and any person so offending shall be fined in a sum not less than $5 for each day he neglects or refuses to abate such nuisance after being notified so to do by the board of health.

On motion of Alderman Lennox the rules were suspended and the ordinance was passed by the following vote: Ayes, Skinner, Bartlett, Callaway, Lawton, Lennox, Stubbs, Himebaugh and Stevens.

On motion of Alderman Himebaugh the superintendent of water works was directed to remove the old settler at the head of the water works system which has not been in use for some time.

The monthly reports of the police magistrate and city treasurer were received and placed on file. The report of the city treasurer showed that during the month of June $14,930.86 had been received, $5,406.14 had been expended, leaving a balance in the treasury of $9,524.72.

The monthly report of the hook and ladder company was received and placed on file.

Alderman Stubbs requested to be excused from further attendance at the meeting. On motion of Alderman Himebaugh his request was granted.

M. D. W. Robbins, as a representative of the Grand Army post, requested the council to set aside a number of lots in the new addition to Evergreen cemetery for the purposes of the burial of deceased soldiers.

On motion of Alderman Callaway the matter was referred to the committee on cemetery.

The written consent of Mrs. Mary J. Buckingham to the erection of a platform in front of her property on Moreno avenue by the Colorado Midland Railway company was presented by Alderman Lennox, who stated that the travelling public would be greatly accommodated by the erection of the platform. On motion of Alderman Himebaugh the request was referred to the street and ditch committee with power to act.

Alderman Lawton also presented the plat of addition No. 1 to Evergreen cemetery, which was accepted by the following vote: Ayes, Lawton, Lennox, Callaway, Stevens, Himebaugh, Bartlett, Skinner; absent, Stubbs.

The city clerk then read the following communication:

To the Honorable Mayor and City Council of Colorado Springs:

GENTLEMEN:—I hereby tender my resignation as chief engineer of the fire department, and respectfully ask that it be accepted, to take effect on the election of my successor. It is impossible for me to devote the time to the discharge of the duties of the office that I think is necessary and I have decided that this is the only proper course for me to pursue.

Very respectfully,
A. G. DARRAH,
Chief Engineer of the Fire Department.

On motion of Alderman Himebaugh the resignation of the chief engineer was accepted to take effect as soon as his successor was elected and qualified.

The council then adjourned.

Proclamation.

COLORADO SPRINGS, July 3, 1888.

The discharge of fire crackers, and other explosives, and the display of fire works on the 3d, 4th and 5th of July, are prohibited within the fire limits of the city. The public parks may be used for these purposes on the days mentioned.

The use of hydrant water for irrigating or sprinkling lawns from noon of the 3d to the morning of the 5th inst. is also prohibited.

W. M. STRICKLER, Mayor.

The City on a New Crusade.

NEW YORK, July 2.—Dr. McGlynn was in jovial humor last night, and with many a wink and grimace unfolded to the Anti-Poverty society in the great hall of the Cooper union a plan for bringing landlords down to the plane upon which the Anti-Poverty society desires to meet them. This was a combination to refuse to pay rent. "Suppose," said the doctor, "that five, ten, fifteen or twenty thousand tenants should pay you no more ground rent but only a fair house rent for your house, don't you think it would be a cool while before the landlords could evict them all? First there must be a notice and then a trial in a district court before the tenants can be turned out. The district courts are limited in number. I think there are only about eight of them. It might take a good many months to expedite those processes. In the meantime those tenants would be living in those houses rent free. The victory would almost be won." In this strain the priest of the new crusade talked nearly three-quarters of an hour. He said the scheme was legal and practicable. It might be well to try it on some tenement house block and mildly boycott the premises. He would not urge a boycott, but said the law could not punish him for saying that he should not feel comfortable in occupying a room from which a tenement had been evicted.

Army and Navy Maneuvers.

NEW YORK, July 2.—The first bugle call for the summer maneuvers of the army and navy troops was sounded this morning on Governor's island. It also sounded on board of the corvettes Quinnebaugh and Galena of the North Atlantic squadron as soon as the war ships dropped their anchors near the fort, where they are to receive the army contingent for transportation to Fisher's island. All the necessary arrangements had been made. General Schofield who commands the division of the Atlantic issued the official order. Target practice was established at Fisher's island near New London and will be continued through July, August and September. The troops transported this morning are the first contingent of the camp, and are composed of four batteries of the fifth artillery from New York harbor, viz.: Beck's battery A, from Fort Columbus; Crabb's battery D, from Fort Hamilton; Day's battery M, from Fort Schuyler; Salinski's battery B, from Fort Wadsworth, and Company B, Eleventh infantry, from Fort Wood. General Schofield has detailed Major Marcus P. Miller, fifth artillery, to command the army contingent transported in the war ships.

A California Contest.

WASHINGTON, July 2.—By a strict party vote the house committee on elections to-day decided the California contested election case of Sullivan vs. Felton in favor of the contestant Sullivan, and will report a resolution unseating Felton. The republicans will prepare a minority report, which will probably be drawn by Rowell of Illinois, favorable to Felton's claim.

REPUBLICAN NATIONAL TICKET.

FOR PRESIDENT,

BENJAMIN HARRISON,

of Indiana.

FOR VICE PRESIDENT,

LEVI P. MORTON,

of New York.

The [illegible] exercises at Gettysburg will be held today. Geo. William Curtis will deliver the oration, which we shall publish in full.

The Globe-Democrat says: "General Harrison was a faithful soldier, and never refused to obey orders but once in all his military career. That was when he was directed to surrender a fugitive slave who was in his camp in Kentucky, and he wrote across the message: 'I decline to obey this order.'"

The board of health of this city is sometimes criticised for not taking active measures to suppress nuisances. But hereafter this criticism will not be made. At a meeting yesterday it decided to suppress the "Nightingale" that made such a hideous noise on the night of the day of Harrison's nomination. This "Nightingale" will not participate in the events of July celebration and we sincerely congratulate our readers on this fact. Nothing worse than cannon crackers, tin horns and devil's fiddles will be allowed.

Elsewhere will be found a proclamation by the mayor, regarding the Fourth of July. In this proclamation the firing of crackers and fireworks in the fire limits on the third, fourth and fifth of July is forbidden. The fire limits are Nevada avenue and Cascade on this side, the east and west and the two parks on the north and south. It will be seen, therefore, that [illegible] is given to patriotic young America to show his enthusiasm. The proclamation also very wisely forbids the use of hydrants for sprinkling from the noon of the third to the morning of the fifth, as an extraordinary precaution in case of fire.

During the past two or three weeks we have published three letters from Castelar. Arrangements have been made for more frequent letters in European politics. The next one that will appear will be "War Clouds in the East." In sending this letter, Castelar writes: "I think my letter will be read with interest by Americans, who must feel what a prestige they enjoy in possessing allies and well organized republics not weighted down by war-fomenting kings and emperors." Edward A. Freeman, professor of history at Oxford University, is also engaged to write two letters, one of which will appear next week.

Harrison received his nomination on the assurance of his friends that he would be able to carry Indiana. This claim for Harrison was not unfounded. His campaign for governor in 1876 is still remembered. At that time he took the place of a republican whose name was taken off of the ticket, yet he ran from two to three thousand ahead of his ticket. The following was the vote for the republican candidates on the state ticket:

Harrison, for governor	208,060
Robertson, for lieutenant governor	205,641
Watts, for secretary of state	206,192
Herrick, for treasurer	206,172
Hess, for auditor	205,731
Smith, for school inspector	205,625

On the same day of this election thirteen congressmen were elected. The thirteen republican candidates received two hundred and four thousand, four hundred and nineteen votes, so that it appears he not only was two thousand in votes stronger than any other man on the state ticket, but four thousand stronger than the republican candidates for congressmen. In 1886 he was a candidate for re-election to the senate. This was the great issue of the campaign. The state then gave a republican majority of three thousand, three hundred and twenty-four. Harrison was not elected because the legislative districts had been gerrymandered so that while the democrats were in the minority in the popular vote of the state, they were in the majority in the legislature. The strength of Harrison in his own state cannot be questioned in the light of these figures. Whatever weakness it was possible to bring out in his record has been brought out.

RUSSIAN ARMY.

Mobilization Possibilities.

PARIS, July 17.—[illegible] Mobilization Possibilities.

It is singularly [illegible] that as the possibilities of war's imminence have decreased, so long as these causes of interruption [illegible] only question of time and opportunity for an appeal to the [illegible] of which the issue must decide whether the Slav or the Teuton shall control the destinies of continental Europe.

The coming conflict has been freely discussed, its results have been discounted, and it already has its literature, in which amateur imaginative strategists have elaborated plans of campaign and written descriptions of future battles, these are either stowed away for after use, or are printed antipropheticly, so as to prove the fitness of their authors to be especial war correspondents and military oracles. Now, I have not the presumption to suppose that I have learned that [illegible] are often blown to naught by some unforeseen accident, my object is merely to indicate summarily the probable working of Russia's mobilization, always premising that my summary is [illegible] a compilation from official data, from the many reviews of the subject which have appeared in the Revue Militaire de l'Etranger and L'Avenir Militaire, and from the articles of the Russian and German press, among which [illegible] "Vorder Weichsel, zur Dnieper," signed "Sarmaticus," a pseudonym said to cover the personality of one of the most brilliant officers of the German staff.

In Russia, as elsewhere, mobilization is the completion to a war footing of the peace effectives of her army, by the calling into active service of contingents not hitherto with the colors. But if, theoretically, analagous this operation cannot be executed in Russia absolutely according to the same rules which are followed in France and Germany, where distances are less and means of communication greater.

In round numbers, each battalion of Russian infantry should receive 500 additional men, who are conveyed by local carriages from their homes to the nearest railway stations; but the distance between recruiting centres and regimental depots is generally so great [illegible] transport of the 5,000 recruits who are to complete each division of sixteen battalions will tax all the railway resources to their utmost capacity during the first days of any general mobilization.

Less delay need be anticipated for the cavalry; the Guard, line and divisional regiments of Don Cossacks are always kept up to very nearly full strength; their chargers are well broken, thoroughly seasoned animals, and as draught horses are obtainable by local requisition, every cavalry regiment can take the field at short notice with six full squadrons.

On its peace footing, the artillery is numerically strong, to wit, and will only require its nominal complement of artillery; but, on the other hand, as the number of pieces is increased from four to eight, and that of wagons from two to twenty, in each battery it will need 140 more horses, and the first transport becomes a matter for serious consideration. Although Russia's equine resources are immense, all her provinces cannot provide animals suitable for the service of her artillery, which is of very heavy caliber. The cartage trains are usually mobilized at their division headquarters, but this system is hardly organized, and its mobilization must be slow, especially in consequence of the enormous accumulation of matériel in the large garrisons.

The total time for the entire mobilization of Russia's armies can only be estimated approximately, as it must vary according to distances, and is absolutely under the control of the general staff at St. Petersburg, where nothing is left to the discretion of provincial or corps commanders. This system of excessive centralization will probably result in much confusion and loss of time. It must also be borne in mind that no experiment of general mobilization has even yet been attempted in Russia, whose effectives have always hitherto been completed during the operations of the campaign. This was notably the case in 1877, when, notwithstanding the labors of all the preceding winter, her six army corps were only ready to cross the Danube in the month of June. Since then, however, great progress has been made, and thanks to the law of obligatory military service, which is now rigorously enforced, Gen. Vannovsky can at present dispose of 3,000,000 of trained soldiers. Still this enormous development of forces will be a main cause of delays and difficulties due as well to the system of centralization as to differences in local situations, the incompetency and numerical insufficiency of the personnel and the immense distances to be travelled over. "Until experience shall have proved that this colossal machine can be practically worked," writes Sarmaticus, "Russia has nothing but deficits to expect in the liquidation of her political budget."

Considering the operation as terminated when the conscripts, having reached their depots, are armed and equipped, Sarmaticus calculates fifteen full days as the average time necessary in all cases when the depots are [illegible] which are cantoned the troops whose effectives are to be completed.

French military experts regard this estimate as exaggerated, basing their views upon the experiment of last year when, for the first time, the reservists were called out, and when in no case the time consumed in the journey to and from the point of mobilization exceeded ten days each way. Now it is admissible that Russian telegraphy is sufficiently general for the transmission of orders to every town and village of European Russia within 48 hours after their issue, wherefore, granting the usual two full days allowed to arrange the private affairs of the individual, every reservist, even the most remote provinces can be on the road to his depot by the evening of the fourth day after the issue of the mobilization order. The journey, though upward of [illegible] days, and may be expected to reach there on the fourteenth, is to be regularly incorporated on the fifteenth. This calculation gives 15 days as a maximum and not as an average.

There is no reason to suppose, says the acute critic of the Avenir Militaire, that the reservists of Kiew, St. Petersburg and Moscow cannot reach their corps as promptly as those of Berlin, Munich and Rosenberg, and there is no [illegible] purpose some months which troops of the active army will complete their effectives by contingents in proportion to their centres of mobilization. Probably the distribution necessary in the matter is a dominant reason for the "exaggerated centralization" which so exasperates the Germans.

Serious innovations are contemplated in the recruiting system followed in time of peace. At present, conscripts are divided into two great categories: the so called military element, and the element furnished by the western provinces or Marches, to correspond with which garrisons are classified as interior and Marches garrisons, both receiving the national element in the proportion of three fourths to the element of the Marches. This system is faulty in that it is a cause of much loss of time in the transport of the conscripts, having learned that the western frontier, but it was impelled by political considerations, and especially by troubles of Poland, 1863-64. That it is an open question whether those doubts are founded, and there is an impression among competent authorities that the Poles have no special reason to prefer Germanism, by which their brethren of German Poland have always been absorbed to Russification which the Poles of Russia have always resisted, so that, in this coming war of [illegible] will have no interest to desert the Slav banner, under which alone they can preserve their autonomy. Ergo, incorporate en masse all the Poles, Esthonians and Livonians with the regiments already in the Marches, and so save time. Much may be urged for and against this project, but certainly the populations of those provinces are not more anxious for the friendship and protection of their German "brethren" than are the [illegible] of Alsace and Lorraine.

In short, it may be concluded that all the cavalry and horse artillery is always mobilized and ready for active service at a few hours notice, but, on the other hand, that the infantry, foot artillery, technical troops, etc., can only be prepared successively and by fractions, of which some can take the field as rapidly as in any other continental army, while others [illegible] much later. In other words, the 16 corps of Russian regiments must begin the campaign with effectives which, though greater than those of their normal peace establishment are inferior to their proper war complement, and can only be brought to full strength during the operations. All critics, friends as well as enemies of Russia, agree on one point, her mobilization cannot be instantaneous. If I may use that term, as it would be in France, Germany, and perhaps Austria, but they differ on another point, viz.: the latter maintain and the others deny that it must be necessarily laborious and illusory.

For a calculation of the time required for [illegible] it is necessary to know their proposed objective, as upon this will depend the points chosen for the massing of forces.

Two lines of operations have been generally taken for granted as probable: a direct march through Roumania upon Bulgaria, or an advance into Galicia and thence towards Buda-Pesth. Neither of these would seem admissible, and for reasons based upon the most elementary principles of strategy. I do not pretend to be [illegible] confidence of General Vannovsky, but I refuse to believe that he would preconize the passage of the Pruth, at all times hazardous, in the teeth of four Roumanian corps d'armee, or would move en masse against the Hungarian capital. In both cases, the flank and rear of the Russian columns are exposed to attack of the allied armies. To the latter exists a most serious objection, viz., Russian railway organization is altogether unfavorable to large concentrations along that front.

A demonstration along the Roumanian frontier is probable, as is an advance through Roumanian territory, should the Roumanians elect to join the Russian cause; and equally probable are important operations in Galicia. But both political and strategical reasons indicate Berlin as the Russian principal objective. If Russia should take the offensive, as Warsaw, first, and then Moscow, must be the objective of the allies. The Russians protest that all preparations now going on are of a strictly defensive character; opinions differ on this point. But, without questioning the sincerity of those asservations, it must be remembered that from Clausewitz to von Moltke, all great captains have recommended a vigorous attack as the most efficient system of defence, and circumstances may impose the adoption of that system.

Taking then as permissible the hypothesis that Russia's main efforts be against Germany, the zone of concentration of her forces, on a great extent, be dictated by the configuration of her railways; the grouping of her armies may be varied by immediate exigencies, but, on principle, they must be assembled either within the circumscription of Vilna or within the triangle Warsaw Brest-Litowski and Bialistock.

[illegible] idea of aggression, but they are convinced that Marshal von Moltke contemplates a renewal of those tactics which succeeded so well in 1866 and 1870-71. Threatening Vilna, from his extreme left, Kieff from his right, he will, abruptly, convey both wings upon Brest, so as to envelop the entire Russian army in the Duchy of Warsaw; simultaneously, the Austrians, advancing from the Bukovina and Galicia, will enter Poland, on Lemberg leaving Volhynia and Lublin, on their right and left, so as to invest Brest from the south, while another German army, moving from Dantzig, Konigsberg and Thorn, turning the lines of defence of the Bug and the Vistula, via, Sonwalki, Augustowo, Lomza and [illegible] through upper Poland, will complete the blockade of that entrenched camp from the north. That this combination will assuredly succeed is doubtful, but, if it does the whole Russian army in the Duchy of Warsaw will be cut off from its base of supplies, within a fortnight, as was Osman Pasha's army at Plevna, with no other alternative than capitulation or a disastrous defeat, by superior forces, at Modlin or [illegible]

[illegible] with Russia or with the allies, the points of concentration must be identical, either Vilna on the right or on the left, Warsaw the [illegible]

I have not the space necessary to give in detail the resources of the important railways which, in the absence of any reliable railway maps, can only be reckoned approximately, but which may be fairly fully timed so as to furnish eighty four trains per diem, from the interior of the empire to the armies operating in Poland, Lithuania and Volhynia. Now, as ten trains are generally admitted to be necessary for the transport of a corps d'armee of 37,000 men with its material, those 84 trains would, in carry to the front daily about 31,000 troops of all arms, but as the number of locomotives is insufficient a reduction of this estimate is necessary and [illegible] 25,000 men daily is probably a fair calculation, or rather a maximum which can be rarely exceeded. Though the number of carriages is sufficient for the simultaneous transport of 250,000 or 300,000 men, the personnel of all kinds is not numerous enough to keep up the operation of any great length of time.

L'Avenir Militaire, which has studied this subject exhaustively, calculates as follows:

The troops now in Poland, Volhynia, Podolia and Lithuania, with their reserve formations, will be completed, at least partially, by local contingents, and can be brought up to an effective of 525,000 men on the fifteenth day after the order for mobilization has been issued. The shipping of the cavalry and horse artillery can begin on the first or second day, but several days must elapse before a regular organization of military trains can be expected. This delay is estimated at six days, and as the first trains from Moscow and St. Petersburg will not require more than forty-eight hours for the conveyance and disembarkment of troops, it can be taken for granted that on and after the 9th day the armies of operation will receive a daily reinforcement of 25,000, so that, by the evening of the 15th day, they will have been increased by 175,000 men, which, added to the 525,000 already with the colors, or contributed by local reserves, will amount to [illegible] to 700,000 troops of all arms. On the 16th there will be 725,000 men in the field, on the 17th day 750,000, and on the 31st day 1,000,000 men will have been landed within the zone of disembarkment. The Russian staff alone can tell whether all these men will be united within the zone of concentration.

That the departure of troop trains will be managed as methodically as in Germany is not to be supposed. A train fully and regularly constituted corps will be transported, at others, only reserve detachments on their way to rejoin their regiments already in the zone of concentration; but, notwithstanding all irregularities, it is safe to assume that after the sixth day, the daily addition to the army of operations will average 25,000 men.

As I have said, the Russian railways cannot keep up this service indefinitely, but it must be remembered that after a certain time, which the Avenir Militaire fixes at 31 days, a reduction in the number of men required is perhaps admissible, estimating this reduction to be of 5,000 per diem, which is admissible, we may conclude, that, toutes pertes [illegible] the end of the second month, the Russians can have 1,700,000 troops upon the frontiers. But will they have those two months? Here is the doubtful point which I shall not pretend to argue, only returning to remark that the most the Russians can hope for is to hold their adversaries in check for the first sixty days, and wear them out by constant friction, avoiding, if possible, decisive engagements.

On Sunday morning about half past nine o'clock Peter Bolger, a stone mason, who has been working on the new hotel at Cascade, was killed while attempting to board the east-bound Midland suburban train. Bolger, who was single, what under the influence of liquor, attempted to get on the rear car when the train was in motion, about 300 yards below the station. The train men as soon as they perceived his condition and intention signaled to him to keep away from the cars, but he did not heed their warning. He made an effort to get on the front platform of the rear car as it passed him, but was thrown under the car. The hind wheels of which passed over his legs near the instep and almost severed them. The unfortunate man was removed to the Midland hospital in this city as soon as possible. The physicians, who were summoned, found it necessary to amputate both legs, but the shock had so exhausted his system that he died soon after the operation had been performed. Bolger was about 35 years old, and has relatives living in St. Louis who were informed of his death as soon as it occurred. Word was received from them yesterday to send the body to St. Louis for interment.

Thursday night three horses were stolen from a pasture in the eastern part of the city of which mention was made in Saturday's issue of the GAZETTE. No clue could be found of the direction which the thief or thieves had taken though it was supposed that the horses had been driven towards the east. City Marshal Dana had a number of postal cards printed giving a description of the horses which he mailed to the officers in all the neighboring towns. Last evening he received a telegram from Hugh Crumble, sheriff of Chaffee county, to the effect that he had arrested the thief, and had the horses and a buggy which it is supposed he stole from another place. Under Sheriff Saxton left last evening to bring the prisoner to this city. He was accompanied by Mr. Barney Hickley the owner of the horses, who only reached this city from Nebraska a few days before the stealing. A reward of $50 was offered for the arrest of the thief and the recovery of the property.

Fitch, St. Louis; G. S. Robinson and wife, Urbana, O.; W. R. Miller, Denver; Mrs. A. McCall, New Orleans; W. C. Flower and wife, New Orleans; C. L. Taylor, Norman Barwise, Pueblo; W. A. "She," a dramatization of Rider Haggard's popular tale, was the attraction at the opera house last night. But little praise can be given the production as it fails to convey the splendid imaginative power of the author which is the strong point of the book. The scenery which was, no doubt, very excellent when new, is a little too rusty to be displayed effectively in so small an opera house as ours. The people in the cast were, on the average, the "Unique" of Miss Laura Bigger being the best thing done.

The Thunderer's libel suit.

LONDON, July 2.—The trial of the action of Frank Hugh O'Donnell against the London Times for libel in its articles on "Parnellism and Crime," was to be to-day. The court room was packed. Lord Chief Justice Coleridge presided. O'Donnell was represented by Mr. Ruegg, a junior counsel, who is a lean, nervous, bilious-looking man. Herbert Gladstone, Arthur O'Connor and many other persons of prominence were present.

Herbert Gladstone sat by O'Donnell's side. The Times was represented by Attorney-General Sir Henry James, Mr. Lambley Smith and William Graham Glynne. Mr. Ruegg in presenting the case for the plaintiff declared that O'Donnell was not in sympathy with the Irish extremists, but held their methods in detestation. The Times had no ground for coupling his name with that party and the plaintiff therefore claimed 50,000 pounds damages. Ruegg also said that O'Donnell had not been connected with the Parnell party since 1881. Ruegg's voice was not strong and his manner of speaking was monotonous. The impression created upon the auditors was not altogether favorable, and the court did not appear particularly interested.

The first witness called was Henry W. Lucy, editor of the Daily News. He said he considered that the references in the articles included O'Donnell. At this juncture Parnell entered the circuit room and took a seat between T. B. O'Connor and Phillip Cullan. On cross-examination Lucy gave testimony which tended to prove that O'Donnell was present at National League meetings where violent speeches inciting to murder and arson were made, and against which he uttered no protest. The lord chief justice ruled that questions concerning Mr. Gladstone's anti-league speeches in parliament were irrelevant. Adjourned.

Latest from Stanley.

LONDON, July 2.—The steamer Vouta has arrived at Liverpool with Congo dispatches to May 23d. Reconnoitering parties which advanced along Stanley's route passed quantities of human bones, which were apparently the remains of victims who had fallen in fights between Stanley's followers and the natives. No relief had been received by the camp from Tippoo Tib. Major Bartellot, believing that Stanley was not more than 500 miles beyond the camp in the direction of Khartoum, was preparing to push on and join him.

Disbursements at New York.

NEW YORK, July 2.—This is the big disbursement day of the year. Interest and dividend payments due here to-day on the securities of railroads and other corporations amount to over $63,000,000, and the interest on government, state or municipal bonds aggregates $14,000,000, making total payments $77,000,000.

A Heavy Fire.

READING, Pa., July 2.—The five story building of the Reading Hardware company, covering several acres of ground, was destroyed by fire to night. The loss aggregates $350,000 well insured. Seven hundred employes are thrown out of work.

The police magistrate fined two men $5 and costs yesterday for fighting.

Mr. W. H. Dillin has opened the Cascade house for the accommodation of the public.

Mrs. W. W. Ford arrived from Kansas City on a visit to her son, Mr. George R. Ford, yesterday.

Everybody should attend the excursion to Green Mountain Falls given by St. Ann's Catholic church to-morrow.

Parties wishing ice cream for the Fourth of July in any quantity or gallon, should send in their orders to Frierson & Gould to-day.

The Colorado Springs club went to Pueblo to play the Pastimes on Sunday afternoon. They played the Pastimes. Score: Pastimes 22, Colorado Springs 6.

Mr. William Lennox has an advertisement in this issue calling attention to the prices at which he will deliver anthracite coal during the coming months.

The police magistrate fined four men for drunkenness yesterday. Two of them were fined $3 and costs each, and the others were assessed $5 and costs each.

There are undelivered telegrams at the Western Union Telegraph office for Grace Baterman, Mrs. Lizzie T. Hammond, Lyons & Hill, and Mrs. F. B. Davis.

The members of the Colorado Springs Gun club are requested to meet at the grounds this afternoon at 3 o'clock sharp to shoot for the medal. W. S. Meserve, acting secretary.

The Denver & Rio Grande railroad will sell tickets to all points in Colorado on its line for one fare for the round trip on July 3d and 4th. Tickets good to return on the 5th.

The county commissioners met in regular session yesterday morning at the court house. The day was passed in examining and approving the official bonds of all county and precinct officers.

The lake at Green Mountain Falls has been completed and is now filled with water. Boats will be launched upon it at seven o'clock this morning. To-morrow will be a gala day at this popular resort.

McShane, Gough & Moore, the sewerage contractors, will not begin work on the system until Thursday. Yesterday they established a camp south of the city and will begin work with about twenty men at the north end.

The Society of Christian Endeavor of the Congregational church held its regular semi-annual meeting on Sunday evening and elected the following officers: President, W. T. Hale; vice-president, Miss Gertie Cristy; secretary, F. S. Atkinson; treasurer, Miss Lulu McGovney; members of the union committee, Miss Jessie Bowe, F. B. Hastings.

Mr. Thacher, of the Appalachian club, of New England, with his wife and Miss Freeman, of Boston, visited the Peak last week. A carriage took them to Seven Lakes from there they went to the summit by burros. On their return to the Lakes the party took saddle horses of Walker's Bear Creek stables and came down Bear creek canon.

No route to the summit of Pike's Peak affords more advantages to the tourist than the Seven Lakes route. The addition of Walker's stable at the mouth of Bear creek makes it possible to ascend by wagon and see the beauties of the Cheyenne toll road, then descending over the Bear Creek trail on horses affords an entire change of scenery.

Seven boys were brought before the police magistrate yesterday for stealing and exploding fire crackers contrary to the ordinance. The boys claimed that they had taken the fire crackers from Helm's grocery store, but it is thought that they are the parties who broke into the vacant store below—Stevens' livery stable and took a quantity of the fire crackers which had been left there. The magistrate fined the boys $1 and costs, amounting to $3.50 each. All paid the fine except one who will spend the glorious Fourth in the city jail.

In accordance with the call of the chairman another meeting was held at the city hall yesterday afternoon of those interested in organizing a branch of the Colorado Humane society in this city. The committee appointed at the previous meeting to solicit names for membership reported 100 names. A permanent organization was effected by the election of the following board of trustees: Mrs. F. B. Hill, Mrs. M. F. Hamp, Mrs. Duncan Bell, Mrs. John Curr, Miss Tonzalin and Messrs. E. A. Colburn, G. R. Buckman, F. H. Hill and B. W. Steele. This board will elect the officers of the society from among its number and will report a constitution and by laws for the society. The organization will work under the articles of incorporation of the Colorado Humane society.

The excursion to Green Mountain Falls to-morrow in aid of St. Ann's Catholic church affords a pleasant way of spending the glorious Fourth in this delightful mountain resort. The lake at the station has been finished and water has been turned into it. There will be a number of boats on hand to-morrow and all can avail themselves of the opportunity thus presented for rowing. A large pavilion has been built on the picnic grounds and music will be furnished for dancing. The ladies of the church will serve an elegant dinner to the excursionists [illegible] reasonable sum [illegible] suburban train [illegible] to accommodate [illegible] who wish to pass a few hours [illegible] The fare for the round trip [illegible] $1.50 cents. Tickets good on any train during the day. Trains will be run according to the following time table:

Going Trains Leave Union depot as follows—8:10, 8:20, 10:25 and 10:35 a. m.; 1:30 and 4:20 p. m.

Return Trains Leave Green Mountain Falls as follows—9:15, 9:30 and 11:45 a. m., 2:45, 5:50 and 6:30 p. m.

The two games of base ball to-morrow bid fair to be the most exciting ones that have ever been played in Colorado Springs. The Five Points hold the amateur championship of the state with the Colorado Springs team yet to defeat. These two clubs have never met and as the home team are working hard to earn the title of "Colorado champions" they will certainly put up the best game of which they are capable. The Firemen's band will furnish music for the game in the afternoon. The D. & R. G. R. R. will run a special excursion train from Denver for the game returning immediately after it is finished. It is estimated that 2,000 people will come down from Denver with the Five Points.

REAL ESTATE, LOANS AND INSURANCE!

Special Attention Given to the Collection of Rents, Interest, etc., and the care of Property of Persons out of Town.

Insurance Carefully Written in First-Class Companies Only.

Losses Promptly and Satisfactorily Adjusted.

STRANGERS, and others not posted in our Real Estate Market, often ask the question, "Where can I best invest my money to be sure of Quick and Profitable returns?"

1st. I would say, Select a locality where you have the most SUNSHINE, the finest view of our GRAND MOUNTAIN SCENERY, etc.

2nd. See that you locate where you can enjoy the best WATER ADVANTAGES that our city affords. A home without water in this country is a desert, and when I say "BEST WATER ADVANTAGES" I mean not only for irrigating purposes, which is very important, but also for all DOMESTIC PURPOSES. Our water supply at present is limited, and unless greatly increased the time is near at hand, if not already here, when every drop will be needed inside present city limits.

3rd. Do not locate where lots are too low in price—Low priced LOTS lying low, low priced HOUSES, and a PALACE surrounded by shanties will never sell for half its value. Better economize in other ways and secure a lot that will increase in value.

4th. Dont wait until the "Rock Island" comes in and then pay 25 per cent more than present rates.

5th. Lastly, call and see us and we will convince you that "BOULDER HEIGHTS" possesses all the above advantages.
